

Please do not break Canada Post up by selling to private corporations. The towns and cities will continue to get service but the farms and small outposts in this province - like Stump Lake, Saskatchewan - could lose even the community mail boxes. We need people in rural areas and we should not discourage them further by cutting out another service. I would have withered up and died if I would not have had the mail library books coming regularly.

Vi Hawkins