

To the Canada Post Corp. Strategic Review Panel:

I write to strongly urge that the present services of Canada Post be preserved, and that the system not be deregulated. Canada Post is an essential service, and its universal availability and universal price for stamps are necessary for the citizens of this country. No alternative type of media can take its place for the delivery of letters, parcels, etc. The burden on taxpayers should not be increased; one of government's pledges to its citizens is to provide timely, affordable, and universal postal service.
