

One of the hallmarks of a civilized country is a publicly-owned postal service. We are fortunate in Canada to be able to rely on this essential public service. Time and again we find that Canada Post provides the best value for money and it is reliable. Canada Post is continually keeping up to date with the changes in communication methods and has shown itself to be "in the game" when it come to innovative approaches and technology.

It would be a tragic change to be at the mercy of a private corporation when it comes to mail delivery. I strongly oppose any move to privatize this Canadian service.
