Dear Sir/Madam,

It has come to my attention that the Conservative government is conducting a review that will determine the future of universal, public postal service. One of my concerns is that this review be made known to the public in a well publicized way giving all Canadians a timely chance to give their opinion. We deserve to have public meetings to have an avenue to share our opinions on an issue that effects all Canadians.

Canada Post is a highly trusted institution in our society and I am not in favour of having any more of our postal system handled by the private sector. I believe our service would become more expensive and less effecient. I want to see our secure, trusted and affordable postal service continue, run by our government.

Canada Post should continue to have the exclusive privilege to handle letters so that it is able to generate the money needed to provide affordable postal service to everyone, regardless of where they live.

A speedy review of our postal system without public hearings is not honouring our democratic procedures and rights. Please give all Canadians their chance to give input on this very important issue.

Yours truly,

Gloria Wagner
